GM's Note

I set out quite early as the run was at Bayee Pass and I have been stuck in Air Hitam on past journeys but of course, when you allow for disaster it does not occur, so at 5.10pm I pulled into the lay-by that Cheng had told me was the run site. Whatever pulled in alongside me and we were amazed to find others there ahead of us. Silent Man came over and told me the site was in the normal car park because the Bolton's car was there. I do try not to argue with hard evidence so we drove across the road and re-parked. We had just got resettled when Frank appeared having just finished laying the paper and told us to move as it would be insensitive to park the beer lorry by the Malay stalls. So back in the car and back to the lay-by, the run was beginning to take on the air of a Mr. Bean movie.

By the time the circle was called the lay-by was full of cars, good to see members are getting more adventurous. The guests were welcomed -Fancy Pants, Ah Lie and Lesley (a friend of the Jones – good to see you back Richard). The hare, Frank, was called in and he described the run as medium with two checks and a bar. He indicated that the run was straight ahead along the main road.

The pack set off all in good spirits and ready to go. The usual macho guys were at the front and had decided that the run would go left and that they knew exactly where to go. So at the first obvious path they peeled off the main road but did have the decency to stop when no paper was found. Frank was grandly gesticulating from behind that we needed to stay on the main road longer. Soon the paper did go off to the left and wound a little way round the hill and then we found a clearly marked cross. I did ask what a cross meant and was told to shut up and not be stupid so we started checking and as always various routes up the hill were being checked but to no avail. We were clearly getting too far from the cross so I decided to return to it. Coming Soon was at the bottom of the path I was on and asked me if it was any good and hearing my colourful reply he got out his phone and answered it and then got stung by a bee and let the residents of Balik Pulau know he was in pain.

Just as I got to the cross, Frank arrived and sorted us out, we needed to cross the road. We were soon on a pleasant path that was easy to jog along and then we met Speed hound returning to say there was a bar. We could see two defined paths off to the right so these were checked and very quickly we heard on up called. The run continued in the usual way and then we came out again on a path which meant another pleasant jog. However we could see the unforgiving steep slope ahead which at some point we would have to scale if we were going to see the cars again. At this point I was behind Mick Chee and we were so busy chatting that we run straight by the check and then when we realized we had to back track and find it. We knew we had to go up so the paper was quickly found. The path up was steep and wound round rocks and through shady trees and along exposed paths.

Eventually we reached the top and began the on down which in parts could be jogged and in other areas had to be slithered carefully. After a while we could hear the road and knew a cool beer would soon be available. We came out on the slope facing the lay-by. No one was lost as Frank had taken on the job as sweeper and brought Night Runner safely back. Runners rehydrated and changed and then started the serious business of eating, drinking and socializing. In support of St George’s Day, Cheng provided delicious English style food.

We had a short circle and first Big Willy was called on ice to represent the English men as St. George. Of course he needed a dragon to slay so G-Man was called in to sit with him. Next Coming Soon was iced for using his phone on the run and for disturbing the tranquility of the forest. Lastly, the Hare and Bunny were iced. The circle agreed that the location was good (The cool air in the lay-by, pleasantly refreshing), the food was delicious and the run excellent (apart from the few guys who did not cross the road and hence did not find the run!). Many thanks to Frank and Cheng for a great Thursday evening.

When the circle had closed, Edna suddenly became very vocal and started to sing some of the songs the harriettes had used in her time as GM. Please do not hide this light under a bush, we need to learn more songs!

As I am returning to England for a while I will be missing Thursday runs but you will be in the very capable hands of Speed hound and Edna and Just Beer when she returns. Have great Thursday evenings while I am away – I look forward to reading about the antics in the newsletter. See you on my return.
