GM's Notes

This was Toddy's first run with the Harriets since his accident in March last year. Bukit Gambir was near the infamous BOTAK HILL which had the environmentalists up in arms over the destruction of a beautiful green top hill and now reduced to an ugly bald scar highly visible for miles around.

Bkt. Gambir itself hasn't been spared either. The once fantastic view from the car park has now been blocked out buildings in front and the much loved path has been bulldozed into dirt roads for the lorries to travel up and down Botak Hill. What a disaster!!

The run went along the 'widened path at the bottom of the Temple and then as it went right we headed straight and into the bush. Up and up we climbed over overgrown familiar trails till at last we came out on top of the destroyed Botak Hill. It was once a beautiful ridge where you got a bird's eye view of the bridges on one side and Farlim on the other.

It was hard work climbing up and the heat didn't help but what I didn't know at the time was that the real 'nightmare' was going to be the 'On Down'. It was very steep and seemingly unending. The dry leaves making it extremely slippery and with nothing to grab a hold of it seemed very dangerous and so slow, slow was the order of the day!! Being at the back also didn't boost my morale. Just as we seemed to reach the bottom, the trail went up again and my mind protested however there was nothing for it but to grit ones teeth and make the climb. Luckily it was a short one and we came out onto the trail leading to the upper tea house and on down towards the stables. It's quite a long walk back and I was dreading having to once again push my aching body up the slope to the car park. However towards the bottom Sai Seng went to the left along a track and then cut through some bush. Before I knew it we were on the trail by the wires and came out at the Temple itself, must to my great relief that I didn't after all have to climb the slope.

The evening brought the faithful hashers, many of whom had battled bad traffic to get there. Food arrived at 7.30pm which the hungry hashers quickly devoured. The evening was quite balmy and although later on there was some fine drizzle (it didn't last thank goodness) quite a number of members stayed until late.

Circle

1. We always give a warm welcome to our guests and Thursday was going to be no different, except when the guests were called out they just rudely walked away from the circle. In their place Toddy was asked to sit and to teach them some manners for future hashes.
2. Akz Hole was charged by the GM for getting his keys locked in the car when the auto lock operated without cause. However since he had gone home to get the spare key and had not yet returned a lookalike was found and Sai Seng had the honour.
3. Mini Sausage has been in Europe having spare part surgery (not quite the 6 million Dollar kind) but he has come back with a new knee. Whilst he still is undergoing physio and hence not running, it was great to see him once more, to welcome him back and wish him a speedy recovery.
4. Sai Seng charged his co-hares, Toddy and Justbeer, for being too slow and looking somewhat lost when setting!!
5. A charge by G-man saw Imposter on the ice. A couple of weeks ago Imposter came alone to the run. He was lively, talkative and enjoyed the hash songs. This week his wife was around and Imposter was rather quiet hence G-man charged him with being pussy-whipped!!
6. The last icing for the evening was for the Hare of the Day, Toddy Tan. Many thanks for a good tough run, tasty food and beer. It is also great to see you hashing again!
